Clean Solar, Inc. will now Guarantee your Solar Production

San Jose, CA (PRWEB) Clean Solar, Inc., a San Jose based solar power installer, announced this week that it is guaranteeing the annual kilowatt hour (kWh) production of each new system they install. "We are confident in our system design. Clean Solar wants to give our customers confidence they will get what we are promising." Randy Zechman, CEO/Co-Founder. "Solar has become a very reliable and quantifiable commodity."

Increasingly, large solar projects are requiring performance bonds that guarantee kilowatt output on solar systems. Clean Solar has taken this a step further to include all residential projects, no matter the size. "We are always looking for ways to make our customers feel more comfortable", remarks Randy. "We work with solar every day. We know how far the technology has come. We understand how reliable the products and their outputs have become. We realize the process can be intimidating for home owners. We are working hard to overcome that barrier and make everyone as confident about solar as we are."

The guarantee covers the first 5 years of the contract's stated annual kWh production with an annual 5% margin for error, which compensates for any change in weather patterns. Silicon Valley receives an average of 5.5 sun hours per day (NREL statistics department). With this data Clean Solar and other solar installers can accurately portray how much production the panels will obtain. For any system that does not meet the guaranteed production, Clean Solar will pay the customer per kWh of under production.
